About this call

New Administration

New Direction

Eric J. Freedman
Chief Investment Officer
U.S. Bank Wealth Management

Dan Clifton
Partner & Head of Policy Research
Strategas Research Partners

What can we expect for the economy and financial markets?

President Donald Trump will soon be presenting his new policy plans to Congress. Among the many proposals likely to be shared are plans related to tax reform, reduced regulation, infrastructure spending and trade policy. Like many investors, you may wonder how new policy direction could impact the economy or financial markets.

Please join our chief investment officer, Eric Freedman, as he shares insights related to potential implications for investment portfolios. And, to provide a broader view of the agendas being planned by the Trump administration and Republican-controlled Congress, Eric will host a discussion with Dan Clifton, partner and head of policy research for Strategas Research Partners. Dan evaluates government policy initiatives and the impact on the U.S. and global economies, as well as on equity and bond markets.
